Chiba University was established as a new national university in 1949, bringing under its umbrella the Chiba Normal School and Chiba Medical College, its predecessor institutions with a history of roughly 150 years. Today our university boasts 10 faculties and 17 graduate schools on four campuses in Chiba Prefecture and one in metropolitan Tokyo, and a rich academic environment where students can acquire a broad-based interdisciplinary education and an advanced level of expertise. Education at Chiba University is guided by our philosophy to “Always Aim Higher,” and through innovative programs such as ENGINE, we actively promote the development of emerging leaders with superior intelligence and humanity, who will one day be able to play vital roles in a global society through their acquisition of excellent academics worthy of the highest institution of learning.

In the area of research, we are vigorously promoting world-leading research and researchers as well as the collaboration of industry, academia and government through the Academic Research & Innovation Management Organization (IMO) and various initiatives. To realize Society 5.0, while respecting diversity in learning, we will promote world-class academic research that will lead to the development of new fields of research based on highly original ideas, and innovative development research that will bring about changes in society.

With this university as our springboard, we will continue to make a wide range of social contributions in education, administration, industry, healthcare and the local community. In this way, we aim to enhance Chiba University’s regional status and become a university that everyone in the region can take pride in. As we expand our presence

02 Topic

Institute for Advanced Academic Research

<https://iaar.chiba-u.jp/en/>

■ Our Research Strategy

Chiba University set out a new vision, "Chiba University Aspirations," on July 3, 2021. Under the vision, the university lays out the following four research goals to promote world-leading research and establish a hub for Global Brain Circulation:

1. Appreciate academic diversity to encourage creative research
2. Promote world-class academic research to pioneer new interdisciplinary research fields
3. Accelerate innovative research to create new academic value
4. Establish a research-faculty organization, "International Strategic Research Institute."

■ What is Institute for Advanced Academic Research?

INSTITUTE FOR ADVANCED
RESEARCH

Chiba University established the Institute for Advanced Academic Research (IAAR), a hub to generate advanced and innovative research, based on the Chiba University Aspirations. IAAR selects and supports cutting-edge research from each field to develop worldclass research. The program also fosters young and mid-career researchers to deliver their full potential.

■ Young Researcher Support Programs

IAAR will do its best to provide young and mid-career researchers with an excellent research environment and seamless support. We believe our talented researchers will create the next generation of innovation.

■ Research Support Programs

IAAR offers two programs to support 20 projects with huge potential for creating innovations and new values. Through these supports, IAAR promotes the development of interdisciplinary fields to solve issues that impede our society's social and economic development. IAAR also expects our researchers to bring out excellent research achievements, obtain large-scale research funds, and form international research hubs in the near future.

Academic Research & Innovation Management Organization (IMO)

<https://imo.chiba-u.jp/>

■ Chiba University Activity Hub for Innovation

INNOVATION MANAGEMENT ORGANIZATION

In order to create social value amid drastic changes in a global society, it is the mission of a university to consistently develop cutting-edge research as the core of international brain circulation. At the Academic Research & Innovation Management Organization (IMO), the Research Promotion Department and University Research Administrators (URAs) cooperate to support innovative state-of-the-art research. We establish and strengthen the system to create social values through further coordination with companies and government offices.

■ IMO's Innovation Ecosystem

IMO will further develop its functions and roles as a hub for research promotion and industry-academia-government collaboration. The organization integrates all the necessary tasks for innovation: promoting academic research and implementing research achievements in society. By assigning URAs to strengthen coordinating activities with companies and other stakeholders, we will take on various efforts to promote joint research with other institutes and private companies. At the same time, we will provide researchers with comprehensive support ranging from planning research strategy to patent application and productization.

We offer a support program for the application for government research grants. Our supports contribute to the increase both in the number and the amount of grants. We also host the "Patent Grand Prix" for students and young faculty to acquire basic knowledge and skills related to the patent search. To foster entrepreneurship, we hold an annual startup business pitch competition called "Nanohana Comp." The competition consists of workshops and pitch contests to acquire the skills and knowledge necessary for entrepreneurs.

■ Open Space for Innovation

IMO offers the Open Innovation Space for all stakeholders: faculty members, researchers, students of Chiba University and nearby educational institutions, researchers from local private companies, venture companies, entrepreneurs, local government officers including JETRO, and others. We uphold networking and cooperation with those stakeholders to accelerate the creation of innovation through joint research.

Enhanced Network for Global Innovative Education —ENGINE—

<https://www.chiba-u.ac.jp/engine/index.html>

Chiba University has created the Chiba University Global Program “ENGINE”, which stands for “Enhanced Network for Global Innovative Education”. ENGINE, which started in the 2020 academic year, has a goal to equip professionals aiming to achieve flourishing careers on a world stage with the ability to communicate, convey information, and articulate their ideas in English.

1 Provide a properly resourced environment for our students to study overseas

With the principal goal of instilling our students with an international sensibility, a period of overseas study is mandatory for both undergraduate and graduate school students. We offer a diverse range of overseas study programs in all our faculties and departments that fit students’ overseas study goals and foreign language skills.

2 Provide a fully globalized education

Chiba University provides an environment where students can study English from a multidisciplinary perspective. For English reading and writing skills, we provide courses that help students with writing their theses in English. For English listening and speaking skills, we conduct practical-oriented education for communicating in English within the context of international Japanese studies.

3 Practice-based application of “smart learning” system

We put in place an environment where students can study anytime and anywhere through the use of “smart learning”, an e-learning teaching system.

■ Inohana Campus High Functionality Initiatives to foster next generation medical personnel and to create the "Therapeutics" Center

As the only national university with the three medical-related departments of Medicine, Pharmaceutical Sciences, and Nursing, Chiba University bears the responsibility to meet the social expectations and needs by nurturing future global leaders in the fields. Chiba University, therefore, strengthens the promotion of "Therapeutics" as its highest priority.

Therapeutics is the new academic field that systematically studies preventive, diagnostic, and curative theories and practices to develop novel treatments. To achieve this goal, we accelerate the high functionality of the Inohana Campus with the support of the Future Medicine Education and Research Organization of Chiba University.

■ Inohana IPE is an innovative undergraduate program in Japan

Inohana Interprofessional Education (IPE) is an educational program conducted through the cooperation and collaboration of the School of Nursing, School of Medicine, and Faculty of Pharmaceutical Sciences since 2007. It is fostering the development of independent and organizational medical professionals who can provide patient-centered treatment and care in cooperation and collaboration with other professionals.

Among the notable features of IPE are the study of four multi-level four-year subjects that are set as compulsory subjects, as well as the adoption of active learning and small group study.

With the cooperation of university hospitals and various health and welfare institutions, students will have the opportunity to learn about actual professional collaboration.

“Academic Link” is a concept for teaching and learning that aims to nurture “thinking students” with abilities to select, process, and utilize knowledge for their long-life learning, and to foster “knowledge professionals” with deep expertise and comprehensive thinking. The University Library / Academic Link Center provides not only a quiet study environment for students but also various venues where they can engage in discussions, give presentations, obtain printed and electronic educational materials and content, and receive human support in their studies. We are strengthening and expanding the teaching and learning support activities at Chiba University to build an educational infrastructure that consistently supports undergraduate and graduate programs. Our activities include information resources provision both in print and digital formats, research support for graduate students such as seminars and individual consultations on English papers, etc. Reconstruction of the Horticultural Science Library enabled us to commence the new learning support activities under the Academic Link concepts in Matsudo Campus from 2019.

The Academic Link Center was selected as Joint Usage / Education Center in July 2015 by the Ministry of Education, Sports, Culture, Science and Technology (MEXT). The Academic Link Center proceed with the Academic Link Professional Staff development program for educational and learning support (ALPS program). The Certificate program for Professional of Education and Learning Support under the ALPS program was certified as a Brush up Program for professional (BP) in April 2019 by MEXT.

Active Learning Spaces

Digital Scholarship (c-arc)

Research Commons

Active Learning Spaces

Provide appropriate places where students can study in groups or individually, or present results of their own study while taking advantage to the maximum of available human resources (teachers, librarians, and other students) who will provide various forms of support including materials, content, information and communications technology as well as study support.

Digital Scholarship

With an emphasis on the usage of digital content in research, education, and learning, and further digitization of scholarly communications, the Center provides digitized academic resources owned by Chiba University through the “Chiba University Academic Resource Collection: c-arc” and the “Chiba University Bookshelf: cu-Books”. They are platforms to utilize digital resources, and to disseminate CU’s research results.
